TOO HIGH.

"So you are going to take a motor trip for your vacation. Are you going anywhere in the interim?"
"Oh, no; we can't afford any of them expensive makes. We're going to get a second-hand machine."

QUID PRO QUO.

"We are turning out a lot of young lawyers nowadays."
"Don't worry. They will retaliate by taking you in."

GOOD REASON.

"Dear, please let me have some loose change."
"Can't do it, my own. Just now, money is tight."

AT ONE WEAK END.

Mr. Dogbore—Was he affected by the draft?
Miss Catnip—It gave him cold feet.

WONDERFUL.

She—How wonderful! You never think of anything but me.
He—Nothing else. Did you say your father was out?

No Further Mutations.

When the late Russian ambassador, Count Benckendorff, lay on his deathbed, the London newspapers were keenly interested in his condition. One reporter, somewhat more persistent than his rivals, made almost hourly trips to the embassy to receive bedside bulletins. Each time he appeared he was informed by a majestic English butler in gold lace that there was "rahly no change in his excellency's condition. Quite nothing to report." After about six weary rounds between his office and the embassy, the reporter became suspicious of the monotony of the butler's reply, and said he'd just sit down and wait until there was some change. "But, rahly, sir," remonstrated the flunkie, "there'll be nothing further to report. His excellency died two hours ago."—Portland Enquirer.

FAKING FILMS IN BELGIUM

Germans Take Pictures Showing Soldiers Distributing Bread Among Hungry Populace.

That seeing is not necessarily believing, where a motion picture camera is employed for purposes of influencing public opinion, is shown by an article in the Princeton Alumni, describing a visit to a Belgian village, occupied by German troops. The correspondent writes:

In the middle of the scene was a little line of ragged Belgian men, women and children. They had been gathered from the nearby streets. They seemed much frightened. Appeared a dozen underofficers and privates carrying loaves of bread. These they thrust into the hands of the people in the line, while in a corner the clicking camera recorded the touching scene, to be shown in Germany and Austria and in neutral countries throughout the world, of "Kind-Hearted Prussians Feeding the Belgian Populace."

That was what the camera showed. But what it did not show were the fields of Kansas and Manitoba, or the ships of the American commission that had brought the wheat that had been converted into the flour from which those loaves were made, or the American dollar sign indicating who had paid for the loaves, or even the Belgian agents to whom the distribution was the morning and evening work. That day these agents had been thrust aside and their bread taken from them. "On this occasion," they were told, "our soldiers will perform your task. You can leave the loaves and go home." I thought I had a story to tell. I was disappointed when my description fell rather flat. "We have heard all about it before," men informed me. "That comedy is being staged from time to time all over Belgium. We don't mind their taking pictures, but we wish they would leave our bread alone."

TO THWART THE PICKPOCKET

Safety Chain Which Will Anchor Wallet Safely to Its Owner Is New Invention.

From sad experience, many a man has learned that placing his wallet in even an inside pocket will not prevent it from being stolen. But if the wallet is attached to the safety chain described in the Popular Science Monthly, a pickpocket could not remove it without taking the coat along, too!

A fine steel chain connects the wallet with the coat pocket. When you pocket your wallet, this chain is wound up on a spring-revolving drum in a very thin casing which is sewed to the bottom of the pocket. The chain, which has its free end secured to your pocket-book, is about a foot long, so that you can draw it out conveniently. Should a pickpocket attempt to rob you, the tug on the chain would betray him.

Japan Raising Medicinal Herbs.
Prices of all medicines have increased to such a degree in Japan since the outbreak of the war that the Japanese Medical Investigation association has undertaken, with the aid of the department of home affairs, to stimulate the growth of medicinal herbs of all kinds, and at the same time to prevent the exportation of all medicines from the country. The Hochi of Tokyo regrets that Japan still has to import medicinal herbs to manufacture its medicines. Many varieties of these herbs are cultivated in Japan, but the government has not especially encouraged the industry. An experimental station was established in Tokyo about 1883, many of the plants being brought from Germany, but the station was abandoned in 1889. The Hochi argues that Japan can and should produce most of her own medicines.

Polite.
"Sir," said the considerate stick-up man, as he reached for his victim's watch, "I sincerely trust you will pardon me for taking your time."

Unique Among Magazines

American Consul.

The American consul is really a commercial watchman who keeps our state department, and through it the mercantile interests of the country promptly and fully informed of everything of commercial interest happening in the foreign country. He keeps close count of all the goods exported to the United States, so that no fraud on its revenues is possible. In general he is charged with the protection of his fellow-citizens who may reside in his consular district. He is expected to inform his government of the infringement of treaties and assist and advise merchants and shipmasters to prevent the emigration of paupers and criminals to the United States, to look after the sick and needy American citizens and to take charge of the property of those who die in his district. He has full police jurisdiction over the merchant marine of the United States.

Decaying Wood Injures Tree Roots.

Decaying wood and old dead roots in soils is often the home of mycelium and other decay fungus, which become parasitic on the roots of fruit trees and shrubs and produce rots which cannot otherwise be accounted for. This parasitic action has been traced to wounds on tree roots, but investigators have usually passed it by, as the organisms found were considered wound parasites and their possible source from decaying wood in the soil not considered.

ABANDON FOOD PREJUDICES

Don't Be Finicky

Be willing to try new foods. Certain plentiful and nourishing foods widely used and enjoyed in one section are practically unknown in other sections of the country. Learn to know ALL the good things; not a few only.

People to easily get into food ruts---insist on eating only the food they are used to and refuse to give a fair trial to others. This causes undue demand for certain staples, with resulting scarcity or high prices when crops are short. At the same time other valuable foods may be relatively cheap and available. A striking instance of this is failure fully to appreciate rice--a valuable source of starch--when potatoes are scarce and high. Another example is refusal in certain sections to use anything but wheat as a breadstuff when corn--a valuable cereal widely used elsewhere as a breadstuff---is plentiful and relatively cheap.

Cook Food Properly

Learn how to cook all kinds of staple foods and to serve them in a variety of ways. Simple dishes well prepared are better than expensive foods badly cooked.

Many persons are prejudiced against certain good foods because, when first tried, the foods were improperly cooked or prepared.

Remove from your vocabulary "don't like" or "can't eat."

Most individual prejudices against widely popular foods either imaginary or baseless.

Try to like every simple food; give it a fair trial.
